

Social Investment Scotland

connecting capital with communities

This autumn, Social Investment Scotland will be delivering a series of free workshops to support sports organisations who want to diversify their income and report their social impact.

If it sounds like something that could help you, your members or your clients, please book now or share with your networks.

Brought to you with the support of the Scottish Government's Sustainable Sport for Communities Fund, we'll be delivering workshops in 3 locations, Edinburgh, Dingwall and Glasgow. Each day will consist of two parts and lunch will be provided.

We start in the morning with:

Business Solutions: Are you involved with running a sports organisation and looking for ways to diversify your revenue streams, build more business-like solutions and potentially attract social investment to deliver your ambitions?

Followed in the afternoon by:

Social Impact Reporting How does your organisation positively benefit people, communities or the environment? Measuring your social impact helps you to understand, evaluate and communicate the social value of your activities to a range of stakeholders.
