Money Advice Scotland are coming to Engage Renfrewshire for the first time to present a half-day training session aimed at support staff. If you support people who often experience money worries, but you are not necessarily a money adviser yourself, this course is for you.

The course will help support staff develop new skills with a view to improving their clients' financial resilience and wellbeing. The training covers ways to talk to clients about money and to develop strategies. Attendees will learn to embed a variety of methods and resources into their practice, with a view to working with clients to improve money management skills and to build resilience in relation to financial pressures.

A buffet lunch is provided.
