

DIY SRGs: A Two-Day Collective Learning Experience

Have you always wondered if there's another way of working in our communities?
What would you do if you had a chance to do things differently?

We are delighted to announce DIY SRGs: A Two-Day Collective Learning Experience in Glasgow. If you have been in touch or have heard about us and are compelled to using WEvolution's Self-Reliant Group (SRG) approach in your work, now is the time to learn how to do it.

SRGs represent the rise of a new people-led movement in Scotland, Wales and England bringing change that really matters to peoples' lives, their families and their communities.

DIY SRGs will include:

- Training in the start-up of SRGs – learn how to walk alongside people as they seek to make positive changes in their lives
- Work through case studies
- Understand the dynamics of group development
- Drawing a roadmap to get your organisations started on the SRG journey

We are only able to offer 10 spaces on the programme, so please book early to avoid disappointment.

“WEvolution has changed my life 100%... I'll get emotional...I have been involved for one year... I have been on the board – a community connector – it is unbelievable – it has just happened naturally... being in recovery is a huge task and I feel like part of the family... it has inspired me to do better, helped my career, given my kids a new version of mum... someone they can look up to... every part of me has changed... I am not just surviving – I have hope for the future” (SRG member)

“It is the first time any organisation has given me permission to dream” (SRG member)
