Stay, Play and Learn in Primary Schools

Early Years Scotland is embarking on an exciting new venture that shares and promotes the Scottish Government's vision of closing the attainment gap and equipping our youngest school children to achieve and thrive in a challenging world. We need exceptional, inspired people to take this from vision to reality and YOU could be part of this team!

Our aims for this service are ambitious with the main focus on

- ensuring excellent transitions for children from pre-school settings to the school environment
- establishing meaningful parental engagement and family learning from the start

The Early Years Practitioners in this team will, within their primary school settings:

- facilitate regular stay, play and learning sessions with P1 children and their families
- encourage and stimulate the children and parents to play and learn together
- fully involve parents to promote and enrich the vital home/school learning link

We want to hear from you if you are qualified with skills and experience that include:

- knowledge and understanding of how young children develop and learn
- understanding of the importance of parental engagement and family learning
- excellent communication and organisational skills

How do our staff feel about working for Early Years Scotland?
