Across Scotland, more and more people are finding themselves locked into poverty. Challenge Poverty Week aims to highlight the reality of poverty in Scotland while discussing the solutions to it. You can take part by organising your own Challenge Poverty Week activity.

There are lots of ways to be involved in Challenge Poverty Week, for example:

- Organise a themed discussion
- Have an open day for your organisation
- Write a blog post or speak to the media
- Speak to a local politician about what needs to be done

We're also keen to showcase ongoing work that's being done around Scotland to solve poverty. Challenge Poverty Week is a great opportunity to get people talking about poverty, as well as highlighting the work being carried out in communities to tackle poverty in Scotland.
